

Resident Physician of the Month
March 2017

Dr. Jill Stone
PGY 5, Plastic Surgery
University of Calgary

Following my undergrad in Immunology and Infection at the University of Alberta, I completed my medical school in Calgary. I'm finally in my last few months of Plastic Surgery – frantically preparing for the Royal College exam. Next year, I look forward to a reconstructive microsurgery fellowship at Johns Hopkins University. In my spare time, I practice yoga, spend time with my fiancée and family, and calorie-count for my obese cats.

A colleague had this to say about Dr. Stone:

“Jill is an exemplary resident physician. Her work ethic is unparalleled and her knowledge base is vast. She is an excellent role model to her junior resident physicians. She has an innate ability of boosting morale and she does it with humour, grace, and kindness. She will go out of her way to teach and she teaches in a way that is appropriate to the level of the learner. She also works very hard at research, publishing in many different journals under a wide variety of subjects. She is dependable and pleasant to be around. I have very much enjoyed having her as one of my senior resident physicians and know that she will be an amazing plastic surgeon in the future. She is very deserving of this award!”

Congratulations Dr. Stone!
